Message from the Vice Chancellor

tee of the Nkumba University Alumni Association who were elected on Saturday December 16, 2017. I am confident that the new President of the Alumni Association, Mr. Jackson Sonko, together with his team will energize the entire Association and further strengthen the bond between the University and all the University Alumni. The election of the new Executive Committee came against the backdrop of Nkumba Day which was held on September 23, 2017. On that day many Alumni were recognized for their distinguished service to the community, and fundraising was undertaken for the construction of a perimeter wall around the main University Campus in Entebbe.

I thank you all for your moral and financial support in that regard. I also take this opportunity to specially thank General Katumba Wamala, Minister of State for works, for having accepted to be Chief Guest at the occasion and for ably conducting the fundraising activity. A number of other developments at the University have been supported by the Alumni. Some of the achievements, including support for computer labs, vehicle acquisitions as well as infrastructural developments, have been sponsored or facilitated by the University Alumni. The University is proud of you for that. Other than the infrastructural developments mentioned here as well as the endeavor to extend our unique educational experience to the districts, the University continues to perform admirably in games and sports, and the University has also stepped up efforts to strengthen international collaboration in academics. I am also pleased to announce to you that Dr. Francis Kasekende joined us in June 2017 as the new University Secretary. On behalf of the entire Nkumba University fraternity, I warmly welcome Dr. Kasekende to Nkumba University.

Finally, I pledge the support of the University Management to the new Alumni Executive Committee, and I call upon all Alumni to keep in close touch with their new Executive Committee as well as the University so that together we further strengthen the stature of Nkumba University. I Owe You.

Prof. Wilson Muyinda Mande
VICE CHANCELLOR

Dr. Francis Kasekende Appointed New University Executive Secretary

■ Dr. Francis Kasekende is the new University Secretary of Nkumba University. Dr. Kasekende assumed office in June 2017 following his appointment by the Board of Trustees of Nkumba University on the recommendation of the University Council. He holds a PhD, a Masters Degree in Business Administration with specialization in Human Resource Management, a Bachelor of Education with specialization in Educational Administration and Management as well as a Diploma in Education.

Dr. Kasekende was since 2012 Senior Lecturer, Head of Department and Acting Dean of Faculty at Makerere University Business School. In addition to human resource management, his academic and practical contribution has been in the areas of Organisational Behaviour and Organisational Development.

As University Secretary at Nkumba University, Dr. Kasekende is head of the Secretariat of the University Council and is also the Accounting Officer of the University. His office is in charge of

■ When Prof. William Senteza Kajubi died on May 1, 2012 Nkumba University considered keeping his memory alive through a series of memorial lectures.

The inaugural Prof. William Senteza Kajubi Memorial Lecture was held in May 2016.

“Prof. William Senteza Kajubi was a true leader of higher education in Uganda,” said Prof. John Ssebuwufu, Vice Chancellor University of Kusubi. Prof. Ssebuwufu was delivering the memorial lecture titled “University Leadership in Challenging Times.” He observed that Prof. Senteza Kajubi was as a foremost thinker regarding the education sector and exhibited the requisite leadership qualities such as honesty, decisiveness and ability to cope with competition. He said that Prof. Senteza Kajubi was keen on quality output and team work, which were qualities worth emulating.

The lecture was organized in honor of the deceased for his immense contribution to Nkumba University and the entire Country. It was attended by family members of the late Senteza Kajubi, the University community and members of the public.

Prof. Senteza Kajubi was the founding Vice Chancellor of Nkumba University who served in that capacity for 14 years (1994 – 2008).

1,585 Students Graduate at Nkumba University

Recipients of Doctoral degrees in various academic fields pose for a group photograph following the 20th Graduation Ceremony on Saturday November 4, 2017. They include (L – R): Mr. Isaac Munyakazi, Mr. Boaz Muyuku Kagabika, Mr. Friend Setuza Rukundo, Mr. Lawrence Sserwambala, Mr. Gerald Wamala and Ms Irene Hilda Namuyomba. Mr. Marcel Zogeye Rwabutogo (not in photograph) was also a recipient of the Doctoral degree.

At its 20th Graduation Ceremony held on Saturday 4th November 2017 Nkumba University conferred degrees and awarded diplomas and certificates to 1585 students in a range of disciplines including business, science, social sciences as well as law. The ceremony was presided over by the Chancellor, Sir Gordon Wavammuno, at the University main campus in Entebbe. The Graduating Class presented by the six Schools of the University comprised of students from the entire East Africa region as well as the Democratic Republic of Congo and Nigeria. “Your success is the pride of Nkumba University,” the Chancellor said. “With your qualification there is no limit to what you can achieve. Grasp every experience and opportunity that come your way and you will eventually reach your desired goals.”

While underlining the year’s graduation theme, “Making choices in the world of diversity”, the Chancellor urged the Graduating Class to emulate the four role models that were conferred Honorary Doctorate degrees. The four that were conferred Honorary Doctor of Letters (D. Litt) included: Mr. Alam Abid, for ventures in a wide range of businesses that employ professional and non-professional Ugandans; Mr. Amos Nzei, for provision of services as well as employment of many Ugandans at his various investments; Mr. Samuel John Kibuuka, for his long service as a professional accountant in the banking sector and provision of employment to many Ugandans; and, Mr. Samuel Mubiru Kizito, for empowering management teams with skills for maximizing efficiency and profit and for his effective representation of Uganda at various international fora. Seven students received Doctoral degrees in various academic fields, and of these one was female:

- Ms Irene Hilda Namuyomba was conferred PhD in Public Administration and Management on the topic, “The Effect of Perceived Organisational Support on Employee Commitment. The Case of Medical Doctors in Uganda.”

- Mr. Boaz Muyuku Kagabika was conferred PhD in Natural Resources Management on the topic, “Formal Environmental Education in Secondary Schools as Framework of Sustainable Development in Rwanda.”
- Mr. Marcel Zogeye Rwabutogo was conferred PhD in Development Studies on the topic, “Effectiveness of Citizens’ participation within the Decentralisation framework for community development in Rwanda. A case of Ruba District.”
- Mr. Lawrence Sserwambala was conferred PhD in Business Administration on the topic, “Financial intermediation & social capital in the enhancement of financial inclusion in Uganda. A case of Kiboga & Wakiso District.”
- Mr. Gerald Wamala was conferred PhD in Development Studies on the topic, “Agricultural modernisation & small holder farmers’ socio-economic status in Luweero & Nakaseke Districts.”
- Mr. Friend Setuza Rukundo was conferred PhD in Business Administration on the topic, “The relationship between motivated employees & the satisfaction of clients in higher learning institutions. A case of Kigali Independent University ULK.”

- Mr. Isaac Munyakazi was conferred PhD in Education Management on the topic, “Training & academic staff performance in the high institutions of learning in Rwanda: A case of University of Rwanda College of Education (UR-CE).”

The Vice Chancellor, Prof. Wilson Muyinda Mande told the Graduating Class that they had just begun the long journey to success. He urged them to work hard, behave well and think big in order to reap big. The Graduating Class was 51% male and 49% female. From the School of Business Administration, a total of 900 students were awarded or conferred a certificate, diploma, degree, post-graduate diploma or a master’s degree. Two of the seven students conferred PhDs were from the School of Business Administration.

The School of Education presented 111 students for graduation; the School of Social Sciences had 238 students in graduating class (including three conferred PhD) while the School of Sciences had 140. The School of Law as well as the School of Commercial, Industrial Art and Design presented 43 students and 83 students for graduation respectively.

The 2nd batch of students undertaking Bachelor of Public Health, six in number, also graduated.

The best five dissertations presented by the Masters students in the 2017 Graduating Class were offered the Sir Gordon Wavammuno Prize. The recipients included: Ms Zaitun Bako (Master of Science in Environmental Health), Ms Agnes Musuhuke (Master of Business Administration – Accounting and Finance), Ms Patricia Elios Nakayiza (Master of Business Administration – Management), Mr. Sani Yusuf Muhammed (Master of Science in Accounting and Finance) and Mr. Vincent Natega (Master of Science in Environmental Health). Mr. Mathew Kiggundu (Bachelor of Procurement and Logistics Management) and Mr. Arne Kamalail Barnab (Diploma in Business Administration) won the prize for Best Degree and Diploma students respectively.

Mr. Fahadi Nsubuga, undertaking the Bachelor of Business Administration (2nd Year), won the all-round prize offered by the Palle Moeller Foundation. This is awarded each year as fees contribution to a continuing student who has excelled at both academics and sports.

ters in the pursuit of self-fulfillment.” By her presentation Prof. Dranzoa aimed to foster self-discovery and thus empower individuals to appreciate their potential and focus their goals accordingly. “Choice is a constant in life,” she said. She urged the students to adapt, be creative and begin exploring solutions to challenges of the next 15 – 20 years. “Today we can hardly live without information technology,” Prof. Dranzoa noted. “The possibilities for creativity in ICT with regard to various fields – including agriculture, education, tourism, e-commerce as well as the liberal arts – are limitless.

Information technology will change and favor those who are ready to move ahead of their times.” She called upon the students to build a network of friends and mentors, and take advantage of the natural environment and other available opportunities in order to work towards achieving their goals. Prior to the Commencement Lecture, Prof. Wilson Muyinda Mande was installed as the 4th Vice chancellor of Nkumba University in a ceremony presided over by the Chairperson of the Board of Trustees, Mr. Mohammed Kalygango.

Prof. Robert Byamukama (seated, right), Director of Postgraduate Studies and Research at Nkumba University and other participants of a three-week workshop sponsored by the Carnegie African Diaspora Fellowship Program in May 2017. The workshop was to strengthen graduate studies and mentor academic staff in publications as well as grant writing skills.

A three-week workshop sponsored by the Carnegie African Diaspora Fellowship Program (CADFP) to strengthen graduate studies and mentor academic staff in publications and grant writing skills was launched at Nkumba University on May 29, 2017.

Prof. Faustino Orach-Meza (centre), Dean School of Sciences, Nkumba University, welcomed Prof. Dr. Andreas Gissel (left) and Prof. Dr. Karl-Heinz Beissner (right), both from Ludwigshafen University of Applied Sciences in Germany, on Monday November 27, 2017. The two Universities have a Memorandum of Understanding to collaborate on a number of activities. The two visiting professors facilitated a two-day entrepreneurs' conference at the Nkumba University Kampala Campus from November 30 - December 1, 2017. The conference participants included among others, officials from Operation Wealth Creation, Kampala City Council Authority, Ministry of Trade and Industry as well as Enterprise Uganda.

The visiting scholar and key facilitator of the workshop is Prof. Jared Sagini Keengwe from the University of North Dakota, USA. He will be supported by Assoc. Prof. Robert Byamukama, the Director of the School of Post-graduate Studies at Nkumba University. Over 30 participants, including PhD candidates in various fields attended the launch of the workshop. The PhD candidates are pursuing doctoral studies in business, education, social sciences as well as commercial art and design.

While launching the workshop, Nkumba University Vice Chancellor, Prof. Wilson Muyinda Mande, said that he looked forward to input by the visiting scholar to refresh academic writing. He called for emphasis on academic reading as well.

“The workshop is intended to enhance supervision of Masters and PhD research, quality Masters and PhD graduates, improved completion rates and also attract more students to the University,” said Assoc. Prof. Byamukama. He urged the PhD candidates to open their minds to the broad and long term benefits of the workshop with regard to networking as well as academia.

Prof. Keengwe called upon the workshop participants to enhance their participation in academic research and publication for the necessary empowerment. He underscored the value of empathy and commitment. Prof. Keengwe will run several workshops until late June 2017 and his expenses as visiting scholar are covered by CADFP.

CADFP is funded by the Carnegie Corporation of New York and managed by the Institute of International Education (IIE). IIE provides international education strategies and program services, while the mandate of the Carnegie Corporation of New York is to “promote the advancement and diffusion of knowledge and understanding”.

Now in its fourth year, CADFD has helped 239 Africa-born scholars who have been living and working in North America to connect to their peers at universities throughout Africa. The program is designed to build capacity at the host institutions in Africa, and to develop long-term mutually beneficial partnerships between the universities. The program selects projects that are proposed by the host universities and matches them with Africa-born visiting scholars.

The Nkumba University project is one of 69 projects pairing 70 North American-based African scholars with higher education institutions and collaborators on the continent to teach graduate students; conduct research and mentor lecturers.

Nkumba University is Chartered (since 2006) by the Government of Uganda.

The University’s vision is to be a leading national, regional and global hub for academic and professional excellence. The University offers undergraduate and postgraduate programmes, including PhD studies, in the following Schools: School of Business Administration; School of Education, Humanities and Sciences; the School of Commercial, Industrial Art and Design; School of Social Sciences; School of Sciences; and, the School of Law.

Entebbe Municipality officials together with a 7-person Chinese delegation paid a visit to Nkumba University on December 14, 2017 in view of the mutual interest to enhance cooperation in community affairs as well as collaboration in teaching, academic research and student exchange.

Nurse Training Commences at Nkumba University

NKUMBA UNIVERSITY NURSING TRAINEES: A demonstration of the application of a stethoscope on a patient in a lab at the School of Sciences.

■ The first batch of nursing trainees commenced studies at the School of Sciences in November 2017. The nurse training started with the Diploma level, and with time the Degree level is to be introduced.

Assoc. Prof. Miph Musoke, Head of the Biological Sciences Department at the School of Sciences, said that all the requisite facilities were in place. The University had earlier on secured the necessary accreditation from both the National Council for Higher Education and the Uganda Nurses and Midwifery Council. The University in mid June 2017 entered a Memorandum of Understanding with Wakiso District and Entebbe Municipal Council for the nursing trainees to undertake their practicum at Entebbe General Hospital.

Assoc. Prof. Musoke noted that nurse trainees were to be admitted in two batches – that is, those qualified for admissions directly after Senior 6, and then the Extensors who already hold a Certificate in Nursing. He explained that while the former were to sit pre-entry examinations prior to admission in October each year, the latter would commence training in May of each year.

“Those interested and eligible are welcome to apply for the Nursing programme,” said Assoc. Prof. Musoke.

Nkumba University Holds National Security Studies Conference

Lt. Gen. Charles Angina (L), Deputy Commander Operation Wealth Creation, made a presentation on the relevance of the military in wealth creation in Uganda. In the picture here, he launched the book titled Security Studies: Principles and Practices authored by Dr. Solomon Muchwa Asiimwe (R).

During the one-day national security studies conference held at Nkumba University on May 3, 2017 it was underscored that the concept of security needed to be demystified and expanded beyond the traditional role of state actors such as the Army and the Police. The conference participants included academics, security sector policy-makers and practitioners, civil society organizations, media practitioners as well as representatives of the diplomatic corps.

It was noted that while the state ought to protect the Country's sovereignty as well as life and property, it was necessary to ensure adequate engagement of all stakeholders for the comprehensive realization of security.

As such, it was observed, strengthening justice, eradicating poverty, protection of the environment as well as watching against cyber-crime were crucial areas for stakeholder engagement.

The conference held in May 2017 is part of the University's ongoing efforts to enhance knowledge and practice for security sector policy-makers, practitioners as well as overseers of the sector. It follows an earlier symposium on security and strategic Studies held in 2015, which culminated in the formulation of security and strategic studies at degree level as well as the introduction of short tailor-made executive programmes.

The University, under the School of Sciences, has been teaching security and strategic studies at Master's degree level for over five years now and the initial class of the programme graduated in October 2014. The PhD programme is running in its third year now.

"The recent national security studies conference for state and non-state actors was intended not only to enhance knowledge and practice in the security sector but to also enrich the programme taught at Nkumba," said Dr. Solomon Muchwa Asiimwe, the Head of Department of Public Administration and Political Studies.

Nkumba University Introduces May Intake

■ Nkumba University introduced the May Intake in May 2017. The purpose of the additional intake was intended to make it convenient for those interested to enroll for University studies at that time of the calendar year.

The preexisting study arrangements, which include DAY, EVENING, WEEKEND OR DISTANCE LEARNING were also designed for the convenience of the students. It is in that spirit that the University in August 2015 started the Kampala Campus (located on Plot 773 & 774 along Kabakanjagala Road, in Mengo). In this case the University intended to bring its unique educational experience close to the people in and around the capital city, Kampala.

The introduction of the May Intake brought the number of intakes (at both the Main Campus in Entebbe, which is located at Nkumba 27 Kilometers along Entebbe Highway, and at the Kampala Campus) to three – that is, JANUARY, MAY and AUGUST Intakes.

In the effort to extend higher education services, the University has also established Distance Learning Liaison Offices in Gulu, Amuria and Kyegegwa.

The academic programmes are in the disciplines of:

- Business Administration;
- Computer Science and Technology;
- Procurement, Purchasing and Logistics Management;

- Office Management and Secretarial Studies;
- Education and Humanities;
- Psychology Counseling;
- Journalism;
- Social Sciences;
- Natural Sciences,
- Hotel Management and Tourism;
- Petroleum studies; and,
- Commercial, Industrial Art and Design.

The detailed list of the academic programmes and the Application Form, for both Undergraduate and Postgraduate programmes, may be accessed from the University Website: www.nkumbauniversity.ac.ug

SENIOR 6 Leavers, SENIOR 4 Leavers, the working class and other suitably qualified candidates are invited to apply for the academic programmes tenable at both the Main Campus and at the Kampala Campus.

SENIOR 4 Leavers may apply for the following programmes: Certificate in Tourism / Hotel Management; Certificate in Business Administration, Certificate in Commercial, Industrial Art and Design; and, Certificate in Education in Early Childhood Care and Development.

The University offers five (5) scholarships for every District of Uganda each academic year. The scholarship is accessible through the District / Municipal Headquarters.

For inquiries and assistance regarding applications, please contact the Academic Registrar's Office at the following telephone numbers: 0782-445997, 0701-264949, 0772-629066, 0704-617827, 0772-829805, 0772-490310 or 0755-766766.
